Local People 'On TV'

"Robert E. Lee" strides past television cameras and the gaze of a young National Park visitor in a segment of a David Wolper-CBS special production "Surrender At Appomattox" seen Monday evening on area CBS channels at 8 o'clock. The part of Lee was played by Michael Fairman with Lary Lewman as Grant and Hal Holbrook as host-narrator. Several local people were involved as extras in the production, filmed here last September. They include Mrs. Orie Milliner, Mrs. Roy Moon, Mrs. Charlie Martin, Mrs. James Baxter, Charlene Bush, Jeannie Stimpson and many others. Mrs. Adelaide Edwards, of Farmville, was among the out-of-town visitors who came costumed for the production.

Va. Ranks 1st. In Nation In Forest Tree Planting

Virginia ranks first in the Nation in the planting of trees for reforestation of privately owned forest land. Over 32,500 acres were planted with commercially important forest tree seedlings. This acreage does not include the 35,000 acres planted by large forest industries, the 3,000 acres planted on Federally owned lands, or the 1,400 acres planted on state owned land. The grand total for reforesting in the Old Dominion in 1971 amounts to 72,000 acres. This information, released by State Forester George Dean, was taken from a national survey of the 1971 reforestation efforts of private, government, and large forest industry reports.

During the 1972 winter and spring planting season, Virginians planted more than 72,500 acres. "Since we haven't received the national summaries for 1972, we don't know how Virginia compares with other states. However, I am confident Virginia continues to be among the national leaders," said Dean.

Another first for Virginia is the record set by the Virginia Division of Forestry tree nursery in New Kent County. For the past several years the New Kent Nursery has produced, packaged, and shipped more forest tree seedlings than any other state operated nursery in the Nation.

Loblolly pine is the tree species in most demand, accounting for over 85% of the Division of Forestry seedling sales. "This is not unusual and is highly desirable," said Dean. "We must reforest pine at an accelerated rate to offset the deficit revealed inthe most recent forest survey. We are harvesting 15% more pine timber than we are growing," cautioned Dean.

To keep pace with the demands of the paper and lumber consuming public, Virginia's reforestation efforts should be doubled. "Furthermore," said Dean, "Virginia's forest-oriented industry is our second largest industry and is dependent upon the forests for its supply of raw material. If we are to maintain a healthy economy, we must grow the timber required.

"Not to be overlooked is the wildlife aspect of tree planting," reports Dean. "I am pleased that the landowners have shown so much interest in the autumn olive seedlings produced at our nurseries. Autumn olive is a highly desirable shrub for many species of wildlife. Over 335,000 autumn olive trees have been planted in Virginia in the past several years and 300,000 plants will be available for landowners this coming winter. Also, continued Dean, over 300,000 bi-color lespedza plants, a highly prized wildlife food, are being grown in Division nurseries and will be available this winter."

Average Family Income $7,724 Census Shows

Average family income was $7,724 in Appomattox County, Va. in 1969, compared with $9,049 for the State, according to a report on the 1970 census by the Bureau of the Census, U. S. Department of Commerce. Per capita income for the county amounted to $2,246, the report shows.

The 1970 census counted 9,784 residents in the county; 0.1 percent were foreign born and 0.1 percent native born with one or both parents of foreign birth.

Among the county's 8,972 inhabitants age 5 and over in 1970, 605 were living in a different county within the State in 1965, and 102 in a different State.

In the population age 16 and over, 77.9 percent of the men and 41.6 percent of the women were in the labor force. Among the employed, 26.3 percent were holding white collar jobs, and 12.3 percent were government workers.

About 42.9 percent of the married women with husband present were in the labor force, and 38.4 percent of these wives had children under six.

There were 2,316 persons 3 to 34 years old enrolled in school. In the 25-and-older population, 26.4 percent of the men and 31.3 percent of the women were high school graduates.

Report Given On Rat Control

J. A. Smith, extension agent, reported April 14to Appomattx county supervisors that the sale of bait concentrate paid for nearly all the costs of the 1972 Rat Control project.

Smith returned to the county nearly $50 and a similar amount to the town of Appomattox. The Rat Control project was set up with a $100 budget with the following project goals met; 176 packages of bait concentrate were sold, enough concentrate to prepare 880 pounds of bait.

A VPI Wildlife Extension Specialist and county extension agents treated several public areas with poison: Pamplin Landfill, Appomattox Landfill, Appomattox Lagoon, Appomattox Sewage Treating Plant, Smith reported that a series of four informational letters were mailed to 1328 addresses. The TIMES-VIRGINIAN published a series of six Rat-O-Grams. Bait was sold by Appomattox Farmers Supply, Coleman and Sons and O. H. Tolley.

The Appomattox Future Farmers of America Chapter engaged the poison concentrate. Committee chairmen included C. S. Booth, Town; M. L. Webb, Business and Business Organizations; Mrs. Alice McCool, publicity; T. E. Conner, Poison; Mrs. DeVonne Godsey, treasurer.

County supervisors chairman, Otho W. Martin, Jr., complimented J. A. Smith on his work as general chairman. He said that with money management like his (that is, returning to the county the money it had invested), "the federal or state government could make good use of his services."

COMPLIMENT FOR CLEAN UP JOB

The Rev. R. Q. Lawing, owner of business and residential property on West Confederate Blvd. was compliment ed at the April Town Council meeting for effective clean-up of the area.

Councilman T. E. Conner brought up the matter and it was heartily approved by council that Mr. Lawing be praised for cleaning up and removing debris from the lot where a fire several months ago had done extensive damage.

Anyone else doing extensive removal work on property of brush or debris will find the town willing to cooperate in picking up litter and trash. Just call the town manager's office.
